April 22, 2010

Happy Earth Day!!

The 2010 Michigan Earth Day Fest is coming to Downtown Rochester this weekend! This event will celebrate sustainable and progressive movements in our communities, educate attendees on the latest ideas and concepts in sustainability, and showcase leadership in our local green business, government, and non-profit programs.

Dominick Tringali Architects is participating again this year! Stephen McKay Jr. will be giving a presentation titled "Geothermal Dream Home on a Budget." This program will discuss the process of designing mainstream green homes for the mid-range housing market, using cutting edge, DTA-designed case studies. Stephen will include an overview of energy efficient building solutions using the latest affordable products, and explain and emphasize the use of cost effective geothermal heating systems with a payback of less than five years. This is a co-presentation with the owner of Lakeside Energy Solutions.

Steve's presentation is Saturday, April 24 at 6:00 PM at the Wellness Stage and Activities area, located in Wellness Way located south of Third Street and west of Water Street. Admission is free. We hope to see you there!
